SUGAR AND THE WAR TAX. Decision as to Those Who Manufacture from Cane or Beets. WASHINGTON, August 4.- The Commissioner of Internal Revenue to-day rendered a decision in which he holds in effect that persons engaged in manufac turing sugar from cane or beets, and who do not buy and refine sugars, are not subject to the tax imposed by the new warrevenue act. The contention of the Commissioner is that the law applies only to persons engaged in refining raw sugars, as distinguished from those who produce the raw or unrefined sugars from cane or beets. Under this ruling practically all of the beet-sugar mills of the West and the cane-mills of the South are exempt from the tax, the proprietors of which are held not to be refiners within the meaning of the law. Of this latter class there are said to be over 700 in the State of Louisiana alone.

The decision was rendered upon the application of the Oxnard Beet-Sugar Company, who asked for a ruling upon this point.

W. 1., August 3.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The transport Massachusetts, havto supply him with additional evidence. The Morton Case-Sudden Death o a Lady-Other Notets.

PETERSBURG, VA., August 4.-(Spe cial.)-In the Hustings Court this morning Robert Morton was put on trial for his life for the murder of young George H. Westmoreland, at West-End Park, on the evening of June 25th last. There was no delay or difficulty in obtaining a good jury. Judge D. A. Hinton was counsel for Morton when the case was first called, several days ago, but withdrew when the Court overruled his motion to continue the trial until September, because of the absence of a material witness. Mr. James T. Rahily, was, thereupon, assigned as counsel for the defendant, and a continuance was granted until to-day, in order for him to make proper preparation for the defence. His conduct and management of the case, with the weight of testimony against him, was able.

The Commonwealth got through with its direct testimony by 12 o'clock, and it did not differ materially from the facts heretofore published. In brief, it was to the effect that young Westmoreland, his brother, and two or three other friends went out to West-End Park with their bicycles; that after riding around the track several times they alighted to rest in the shade. leaving their bicycles against the track railing; that while thus resting Morton came along and kicked against Mr. Westmoreland's 'bike, and when spoken to about it and told not to do so again Morton turned and cursed and abused the young men; told them he would kick them, and otherwise threaten-ed them; that without further words he drew his pistol and fired, as though to carry out his threats. Mr. T. H. West-moreland called to Morton not to shoot, and ran forward and seized him to take nis pistol away and prevent him from doing any damage. During the scuffle for the weapon Morton fired once or twice-the last shot entering George Westmoreland's forehead, causing death The latter was going to his brother's assistance at the time he was shot. Morton was then overpowered and turned over to an officer.
The Commonwealth's witnesses testified that while Morton had evidently been drinking to some extent, he was sober enough to know what he was doing, The main effort of the defence was to prove that Morton had taken a number of drinks during the afternoon, and that he was drunk when he reached the park. It was not denied that he had killed Mr. Westmoreland, but it was sought to prove that he was too drunk to have deliberately premeditated the murder, and that, therefore, he did not commit mur der in the first degree.

The evidence was concluded at 2:30 P with a very strong case made ou for the Commonwealth.

When the court met again at 5 o'clock, instructions as agreed upon by both sides were read to the jury by Judge Mullen, and the argument was begun, concluding at 6:30. The jury were out about twenty minutes, and then returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. Morton took the verdict with perfect composure and without the quiver of a muscle. Indeed, it would seem that he had made up his mind, in view of his thoroughly unjustifiable and unprovoked crime, that he would suffer the penalty of death, and, therefore, was prepared to face the verdict of the jury. It is reported that in the first ballot the jury were unanimous for the death penalty, and that they remained out as form. A motion for a new trial will be

BROAD AND CONFIDENT DEMAND THROUGHOUT THE RAILWAY LIST.

ASSURANCE OF GENERAL PROSPERITY. Unexampled Foreign Trade-Very Heavy Dealings in Bonds-Wheat Prices Sustained.

NEW YORK, August 4.-It was very obvious in the stock market to-day that powerful speculators were placing very large amounts of money in the Granger stocks, in anticipation of a rise in prices. There were many indications, also, that some of the funds which were being placed in the Clangers were derived from sales of some of the more prominent Industrial specialties, which have shown recent large advances in price, so as to yield a handsome profit on the sales. This shifting of speculation is an episode which invariably occurs in the course of a longcontinued advance in prices. The preliminary movement in the highly speculative Industrials is generally quite apparent from any general condition of business or industry. The later awakening of the more substantial of the railway stocks is looked upon as indicating a more vital stage of speculation and investment.

mand to-day through the whole of the railroad list, much of which must have come from the outside. In many stocks rowing demand was met by a stream of offerings, which left this growing demand was met by prices, in spite of a large volume of trans-actions, only slightly higher than last night. This outside buying gave marked mpetus to the speculation in the Grangers, which were taken up one after the ers, which were taken ap other and bid up quite confidently, to a level nearly a point over last night's evel nearly a point over last night' closing. The shifting of speculative ac count, involving profit-taking in the In-dustrials, encouraged bear attacks; par-ticularly in Sugar, Rubber, Cotton-Oh, and Tobacco. The whole railway list held remarkably firm in the face of the weakness in the specialties, the close showing a strong tone at or near the top. ASSURANCES OF PEACE.

The assurances of peace, and the pass-ing of the critical period for the crops, making sure the harvesting of an unpre edented volume of products, gave assurance of continued prosperity to the country, after a year of unexampled foreign rade. This general condition is, of course, the basis of the expectation of an upward movement in the prices of securities, due mmediately to the speculative initiative n the Grangers. There were very heavy dealings in rail-road bonds to-day, the demand being very widely distributed, but most urgent
